

Conservation Commission Meeting

November 20, 2024

Members present: Bob Keating, Brad Jones, Allison Knab, Bill McCarthy, Chris West

Non-members present: Susan Connors, Planning Department; Scott R. Frankiewicz, N.H. Land Consultants; Anthony Fusco and Chris Heckman, Fox Construction

The meeting was called to order at 6:30 p.m.

23 Winding Brook Drive

Mr. McCarthy invited the developers to present the proposed project for 23 Winding Brook Drive. The project requires a variance from the Wetlands Conservation District for construction within 100 feet of very poorly drained soils. The project is also subject to a Special Exception review by the ZBA for encroachment in the Shoreland Protection District. The Commission previously reviewed the driveway culvert in September and had no objections to that.

Mr. Frankiewicz noted that the house is 55.2 feet from very poorly drained soils instead of the required 100 feet. The well is the required 25 feet back and the septic system, which is currently in front of the RPC, would be behind the house. The home is approximately 2800 feet in size. Mr. Frankiewicz was unable to answer questions about the square footage of impact.

The developers indicated they would use a drip edge on the roof to mitigate runoff, not cut in the buffer zone, and planned to put up no-disturb placards along the no-disturb buffer on metal posts.

The town received two comments opposing the project. Mr. McCarthy asked for any response on the comments.

Mr. McCarthy asked whether there was any public benefit to the project, as it would have a negative impact otherwise on the town's natural resources. Mr. Fusco noted that it would add housing in Stratham.

Several Commission members stated they did not believe it to be a buildable lot. The impact to the buffer area is substantial; well more than half the house is within the setback. Buffers serve a purpose and this project would have a great impact on the buffer area. Mr. McCarthy did not feel there was a compelling reason to support the wetland impacts. The Commission agreed to write a letter to the Zoning Board in opposition to the project and noting the importance of mitigation measures if the ZBA does grant the variance.

The Commission discussed the importance of enforcement for any ordinance change.
